BUSINESS PLAN

1. Industry Overview

The petroleum, gas and Logistics Services industry comprises of companies that provide consolidation of petroleum consignments, trade document preparation, petroleum services and logistics services.

Tanzania is the international gateway for several of its landlocked neighbouring countries. Burundi, Rwanda, Uganda, DR Congo, Zambia and Malawi are all dependent on the country's petroleum and transport network for their access to global markets. In an effort to improve its economic performance, Tanzania is a member of the Southern Africa Development Community (SADC) and East African Community (EAC) Regional blocks.

The petroleum, gas and transport system in Tanzania consists of five modes: roads, rail, water, air and pipelines. A high proportion of the infrastructure was not modernized over time due to limited resources to invest. Furthermore, a large amount of infrastructure and equipment is now beyond its economic life. The availability of proper transport infrastructure and efficient transport services are crucial determinants for socio-economic development and industrial development.

There has been a tremendous effort by the Government of Tanzania to create essential petroleum distribution and transport infrastructure and services which eventually improve access to jobs, education as well as to facilitate domestic and international trade.

A proper petroleum and transport business and communication network normally promotes trade, promotes tourism, strengthens regional integration and attracts foreign investments while contributing to the government revenue. It is important to emphasize that to be economically and financially sustainable, transportation must be cost effective and continuously responsive to changing demands through the creation of a more competitive transport sector.

Tanzania's petroleum system performs fairly well compared to its African peers, but quality is still poor and has a negative impact on the economy's productive capacity.

The petroleum industry in Tanzania plays an essential role in growing and improving the other industries as well. The petroleum Performance Index shows that Tanzania's overall logistics ranking has shown significant improvement over the past few years.

Of note, international shipments, infrastructure, track & trace and petroleum competence have improved significantly. Some of the key factors that will contribute to growth in this industry include growth in the manufacturing sector, consumption, international trade and also increase in technology reliance will provide new opportunities for logistics consulting and advisory services, particularly for distribution chain networks and logistics.

petroleum helps in cost reduction and thus maximizes the profit. This becomes possible due to improved material handling, safe and speedy transportation, convenient location of warehouses, etc.

Today, all types of industries in the world are dependent on the petroleum sector. Logistics have become an essential requirement of any enterprise which has a supply chain.

Trucks will continue to have the largest share of the freight market. Unlike railroads, pipelines, or water carriers, they don't face geographic limits caused by physical constraints, and can offer door to door service.

It is no doubt that starting and operating a Transport and Logistics Services Company can be capital intensive and challenging, but at the same time quite rewarding.

We intend to pursue innovation to fundamentally change our approach to the way we will work realize its long-term vision. We will utilize the online market and new technology to open new markets. Our office location and size give us the strength to operate fast and conveniently.

Threat

Some of the threats that we are likely to face are mature markets and poor infrastructure which may reduce the speed we would like to operate with.

6. Market Analysis

Market Trends

Most players in the transport and logistics services industry are positioning their businesses to maximize profits. Large established companies tend to have their own truck fleets, but many smaller companies outsource the freight transportation function. These smaller companies have a steady demand for reliable transportation solutions. We will actively solicit such customers to meet this need.

Some of the key factors that will contribute to growth of our company are growth in the manufacturing sector, political stability and international trade. As the economy grows, the demand for goods will continue to increase, and more truck drivers will be needed to keep supply chains moving.

As fuel prices rise, some companies may switch their shipping to rail to lower costs. However, rail is unlikely to take much market share away from trucks because even with high diesel prices for trucks, they are more efficient for short distances. Additionally, many products need to be delivered within the short time frame that only trucks can operate in. Target Market
